"Age is no handicap for 95yo golfer ..."

A determined 95 year old golfer from NSW has had a remarkable return to the green after breaking his leg on four separate occasions. He says it wouldn't have been possible without regular physio and a caring team at Bupa Aged Care.

Golf could be the secret recipe to a long and healthy life, if Bill Maiden from Bupa Aged Care in Bateau Bay is anything to go by.

"I go to physio three days a week because I'm keen to get back on the green. I am too far behind at the moment if you get what I mean? When you reach my age, you have to put everything else aside and focus on achieving something," Mr Maiden said.

The 95 year old celebrated 18 months of physiotherapy with a putting session at the Breakers Country Club.

"My putt is pretty rough because I haven't played in such a long time. I broke my leg four times and the doctor said that the rest would be up to me so I'm working hard in physio sessions so I can play golf again.

"The people who train me are doing everything they can to get me back on the course so I'm feeling optimistic about things," he said.

Despite taking a few steps forward on the green last week ... read more
